NATIONAL HIGHWAYS

The people of this country are building a National Highway as a lasting monument to a great man.

Through fertile fields, thriving cities, across rivers and over mountains, the Lincoln Highway will extend from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

San Francisco will be joined with New York, and the thousand cities and towns along the way will be benefited.

Another National Highway—The Telephone Way—will be opened to the Public before the Lincoln Way is ready for travel.

From New York to San Francisco the big copper wires of the Bell System extend in an unbroken line—the broad highway of Universal Service.

This Highway, too, is a lasting monument—to the energy of private enterprise.

To that spirit of service that has made the Bell system one of the largest and most useful corporations in the country.

In your own telephone company's territory alone—the seven Mountain States—there are 80,000 miles of long distance highways open for your messages every day.

Eschew all conglomerations of babble and amiable affections. Let your extemporaneous expatiations have intelligibility and veracious vivacity, without rhodomontade or bombast. Sedulously avoid polysyllabic profundity, pompous prolixity, ventriloquial verbosity and grandiloquent vapidness. Shun double entendres, puerile jocosity and pestiferous profanity, obscure or apparent.

The Uracca Ranch was the scene of a most festive occasion on last Saturday when nearly a hundred friends responded to Mrs. Webster's invitation to a tea given for the Ladies' Aid of the M. E. church and their friends. The ranch home and grounds were at their loveliest and the afternoon spent upon the lawn and in the orchard passed all too quickly for the guests. Tea was served beneath the trees and all departed voting the hostess many thanks for her hospitality.
